Friday, December 13. 1706.

London, December 13.

The remaining Articles at large of the Treaty of Peace between the King of Sweden and King Stanislaus, and King Augustus Elector of Saxony.

Article VII. THE Crowns and the rest of the Regalia of the Kingdom of Poland, as also all the Records of the Kingdom, which 'tis suppos'd are convey'd into Saxony, with all the regal Ornaments and Jewels, shall be deliver'd up to the most serene King of Poland immediately after this Treaty is ratified.

Article VIII. The most serene Royal Princes, James and Constantine, shall at the same Time be releas'd from their Confinement and conducted to the Swedish Camp in a decent Manner; but first they shall oblige themselves by a Writing in proper form, not to make any Disturbance or attempt to revenge hereafter the Injuries they suffer'd in the Time of the War or during their Confinement.

¶ The most serene King and Elector promises to pay to the most serene Prince James, the Sum of Money due to him upon a Bond, and to give Order that without any cavilling that Bond may be intirely satisfied.

Article IX. All the Poles and Lithuanians of what Quality or Condition soever that have been carried to Saxony, and by Order of the most serene King and Elector are detain'd Captives there or elsewhere, shall be restor'd to their former Liberty. The most serene King and Elector does likewise promise, to interpose his good Offices with the Pope, that the Bishop of Pofnania may speedily be set at Liberty.

Article X. So likewise, all the Swedes taken in this War, and kept in Custody in Saxony or elsewhere, whatever Rank or Condition they are of, shall as soon as this Treaty is ratified be set at Liberty-Ransom-free. His Sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden will at the same set at Liberty a like Number of Saxons, and also all General and other Officers, Ransom-free; but the remaining common Soldiers Prisoners, as well as those who have already taken Service in his Troops, shall be detain'd by him if he think fit, and list'd into his Service.

¶ Whatever Officer on either side has contracted Debts during the Time of his being detain'd Prisoner, shall pay them or be oblig'd to give Security before he be set at Liberty.

Article XI. All Deserters and Traitors, that shall be found in Saxony, whether they be Swedes or of Provinces subject to Sweden, shall be deliver'd up to his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden, and particularly John Reinhold Patkul, who till he be deliver'd up shall be kept in close Custody.

Article XII. Also the Muscovite Soldiers that remain in the Electorate of Saxony, shall be deliver'd as Prisoners to his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden.

Article XIII. All Colours, Standards, Kettle-Drums, Artillery, and the like Ensigns or Instruments of War, that have been taken from the Swedes, and are kept as Trophies, shall be restor'd to his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden.

Article XIV. Collonel Gortz, whom his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden took under his Protection, having tho' absent and without Cause shewn, been publicly declar'd infamous; that Sentence shall be annull'd, and he restor'd to his former Honour and Reputation.

Article XV. Seeing that because of the Distance of Places, the ratifying of this Pacification and obtaining the Guaranty hereafter mention'd seem to require some Length of Time, it shall be free for his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden to put his Troops into Winter-Quarters throughout the whole Electorate and its Provinces, and there to collect Forrage and Pay for them. In the mean Time certain Districts shall be appointed, in which the Troops his sacred Royal Majesty and Electoral Serenity has in Saxony, may have safe and quiet Subsistence: And as for the Troops he has in the Kingdom of Poland, they shall continue and have subsistence there, yet in Places distant from the Quarters of the Swedes, till the Swedes leave Saxony to return home.

Article XVI. At the same Time the Towns and Castles of Cracow and Tykoczin, and whatever other fortified Places are garrison'd with Saxons, shall be evacuated, and deliver'd up to such as his sacred Royal Majesty of Poland shall nominate, and appoint, with all the Artillery and Stores of War that are found in them.

Article XVII. And whereas Leipfick with the adjacent Castle have been surrendered, and Wittenberg has also receiv'd a Swedish Garrison, 'tis agreed that when the Articles of this Treaty are fulfill'd and executed, the Swedish Garrisons shall quit those Towns and Castles, which shall be restor'd intirely to their former State, and at an appointed Day the Swedish Army shall march out of the Saxon Territories.

Article XVIII. All Hostilities shall cease in the Electorate of Saxony and its Provinces, and a Truce be faithfully kept, from the Day of the Conclusion and Signing of this Treaty by the Commissioners appointed on both sides: And in Poland and Lithuania, as soon as Notice of the Peace being made can reach the Armies of both Parties; for which XXI Days is allow'd.

Article XIX. It is agreed between the most serene King of Sweden and the most serene King and Elector of Saxony, by a particular Compact, that both, as Members of the Roman-German Empire, shall firmly maintain Religion as establish'd by the Peace of Munster, and in the other Affairs of the Empire act in Confort by joynt Counsels. And that the Estates and Inhabitants of Saxony and Lusatia, may be the better secur'd of enjoying the free Exercise of the Protestant Religion, at the Instance of his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden as Guarantee of the said Peace, his sacred Royal Majesty and Electoral Serenity promises, for himself and the succeeding Electors of Saxony, that no Change of the Protestant Religion shall ever be introduc'd into the said Countries, nor shall Roman Catholics be allow'd any Churches, Schools, Academies, Colleges, Monasteries, or Places where to erect them, now or hereafter.

Article XX. If the most serene King, and Elector of Saxony, shall on Account of this Treaty be hostily attack'd by the Czar of Muscovy or any other, the most serene Kings of Sweden and Poland will assist him against the Aggressor.

¶ They likewise promise, that when Peace shall come to be negociated with the Czar of Muscovy, Regard shall be had to the most serene King and Elector, that his just Demands may be fairly satisfied.

Article XXI. All that is thus settled agreed and promis'd by this Treaty, shall not only be inviolably and religiously observ'd, and faithfully and punctually fulfill'd in every Article or Clause of the Treaty, by each of the most serene Kings and Princes that are Parties to it; but that this Peace may be the more firm and lasting, the most serene King and Elector of Saxony, undertakes to endeavour to procure the Guaranty of the most serene and most potent Roman Emperor, of the most serene and most potent Queen of Great-Britain, and of the High and Mighty States General of the United Netherlands, and to exhibit the same in due and solemn Form in Writing within 6 Months after the Signing of this Treaty. Besides the foremention'd Potentates, his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden may if he thinks fit invite and take in other Guarantees.

Article XXII. Lastly, this Pacification, of which two Instruments are drawn up, shall within 6 Weeks from the Day of its being sign'd be ratified in the most authentick Form by each of the Parties to it: On the Part of his sacred Royal Majesty of Sweden and his sacred Royal Majesty of Poland, one Copy shall be ratified; and on the Part of his sacred Royal Majesty and Electoral Serenity two Copies shall be ratified: Which Copies shall within the foresaid space of Time, be exchang'd at a Place and Day appointed, by the Commissioners of both Parties. In Testimony of all which We the above nam'd Commissioners, being entrusted with full Power and Orders, have sign'd with our Hands and corroborated with our Seals two Instruments of the same Tenour. Done in the Village of Alt-Ranstad the 24th day of September N. S. in the Year 1706.

Separate Article.

Notwithstanding the most serene Prince and Lord Frederick Augustus King, and Elector of Saxony, has promis'd by the 21st Article of this Treaty to procure and exhibit the Guaranty therein mention'd within the Space of 6 Months; yet if it shall happen, that for evident Reasons he cannot procure it, or should be oblig'd to defer the Exhibiting (or Delivering) of it beyond beyond the foresaid Time, it is agreed, that the Treaty shall however continue in Force, nor shall its Validity be deem'd on that Account to be diminish'd.

In Yesterday's Courant, the last Line but 1 of the 5th Article of the Treaty, for now and carrying, read and now carrying.
